Subject: BA Census,R-390A's

Gentlemen?

In conjunction with Terry's attempt to put together a good mil BA list, I thought I'd attempt to compile a more comprehensive list of R-390A contracts and quantities by polling the BA community.

I plan to poll the BA'ers about one a week for a month, or until I've gotten all input from you that I'm gonna get.

After the input is in, I will post the results to the list, and hopefully Terry will have new info on contracts and numbers.

So, if you own one or more R-390A's, please go take a peek at it (them) and then reoly to me with this information.

- 1) maker (EAC, Motorola, etc)
- 2) contract number (63-PH-54 for ex)
- 3) serial number of the frame (front tag)
- 4) any unusual features (dynamotor, frequency shield, etc)

Reply here, and thanks,

Subject: Boatanchor (R-388) question

I seem to have a problem with my R-388. It seems that when I bandswitch, every other band seems "dead" i.e. poor or no reception except for some strong am station interference at the far end of the scale. Anyone out there know what the problem might be? I live rather close to an am transmitter but would that explain the "dead" reception on every other band? If there is a problem, (i.e bigger than I can handle) do you know anyone who specializes in servicing these behemoths?

I've built a few regens and a couple of superhets, but anything more complex than changing a tube in my R-388 scares me since I would like to keep it as pristine as possible. It's a wonderful receiver and something I would like to pass on to my kids someday.

Thanks in advance

Fel

[ Relayed from a colleague who does not have net access ]

Does anyone have an EM1 valve that will never be used under their bench ?
Also does anyone have info on the connections to the EM1 ?
I am trying to repair a Philips R/C bridge which uses the EM1.

If you have an EM1 available please let me know and I will send the necessary.
